Rome, Octob. 30. The Pope is resolved to abolish the great Jurisdictions pretended by the Foreign Ministers residing here, who on the other hand are very unwilling to part with what they have been so long in possession of; and for the effecting his intentions, the Pope has given command that the Garison of this City be increased, and that strong Guards be set in several places. A new Troop of 100 Horse has been likewise raised, and the command of it given to the Count de Viesque. On Tuesday last died here the Father Dominican, who was sent to the Pope by the King of Persia.

Vienna, Nov. 7. The Turkish Chiaus who arrived here two days since, demands the liberty of two Persons belonging to the Bassa of Newhausel, which were lately taken by a party of Hussars. We are told that the Marquis de Grana is ordered to go to the Army, to command that part of it which will winter along the Rhine. From Hungary they write that the Rebels grow very powerful, and that they expect assistance from the Turks and Tartars. General Cobs presses for supplies from hence.

From the Camp before Stetin, Nov. 12. Yesterday about noon a Mine was sprung on the Lunenburg side, in which were 30 Barrels of Powder, and 200 men were commanded to post themselves so soon as the Mine was sprung; the same had the desired effect, but the Besieged had put themselves in so good a posture to receive us, that we could not execute the orders that were given; in this action Lieutenant-Colonel Westrumb, with several other Officers, were killed and wounded. The hard frost does very much incommode us in our Trenches, though we do all we can to secure our selves against the Cold, by keeping great Fires in them.

Hamburg, Novemb. 16. The advices we receive from Stetin say, that on the 11th instant the Besiegers sprung a Mine, and followed the same with an Attack, in which they were repulsed; That they had been informed by Deserters, that the Besieged had resolved to defend the place for three months longer; and that the cold weather did so extreamly incommode the Soldiers, and the hard Frost made their working so difficult, that it was thought his Electoral Highness would after all be forced to raise the Siege. The report we had of the taking of the Fehr Scans in the Isle of Rugen by the Danes, proves a mistake; and on the contrary, the Letters we receive this morning from Stralsond say, that the Danes have made no great progress in their Attacks upon the said Fort, and that they having brought their Men of War and other Vessels before it to attack it on the side of the Water, they had been so warmly received by the Fort, that they were forced to remove to a greater distance, he that commanded the ships, with several others, being killed. They continue to write from Denmark of the illness of the King of Sueden, but what ground they have for it we know not.

Ditto. The last account we had of the Siege of Stetin, by Letters of the twelfth instant, was, That the Besiegers having sprung two Mines, the one
